The Valley Village Story

Big News in 1939 Community Of Valley Village Formed

According to the Los Angeles Times, Valley Village was born and articles of incorporation were granted in May 1939. In June of 1939, 500 women met on the grounds of the King Charney Rancho on Magnolia Boulevard to launch a beautification committee. It was the start of neighbors working together to improve the quality of life.

It's Official

Since the Post Office branch always had carried the name Valley Village, it was felt it should be made official. The request was taken to the Los Angeles City Council and with the help of former City Council members Joel Wachs, John Ferraro and Zev Yaroslavsky (now a County Supervisor) it was approved.

The Valley Village Specific Plan

- Limits certain types of commercial enterprises;
- It regulates the placement of balconies and rooftop installations on apartment buildings;
- Requires appropriate landscaping.
- No new commercial buildings may be higher than 36 feet, and no homes higher than 30 feet.
- There are other restrictions as well.

Protecting The Community From Overdevelopment

The Valley Village Homeowners Association developed a Specific Plan to restrict height and guarantee low density in new construction, whether commercial or private homes. The Specific Plan, conceived by the dedicated board members, took seven years to be approved and was ratified in February 1993. These planning restrictions work and have proven to be invaluable.

CHANGES COME TO VALLEY VILLAGE

In 1986, with the threat of uncontrolled high rise buildings, residents formed a homeowners group. The community name Valley Village was reclaimed and the Valley Village Homeowners Association was formed.

Hard Work Pays Off For Valley Village

Members can be proud of the achievements of the Valley Village Homeowners Association. VVHA volunteers work very hard to improve our community and have had many successes. Here are just a few:

Limiting super-expansion of Burbank/Bob Hope Airport has been a top priority for many years. The Valley Village Homeowners Association has been a strong voice for compromise, staying in contact with political representatives and community leaders on the impact of uncontrolled airport growth on our property values and quality of life.

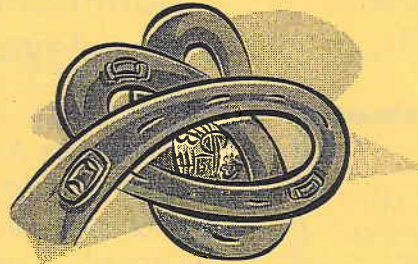

Valley Village Homeowners Association successfully campaigned for extensive landscaping on the Orange Line Busway. The original Metropolitan Transit Authority plan included little greenery and no irrigation. VVHA advocated for a landscape design that included irrigation and lush plantings and trees.

Valley Village*

The completion of a gateway sign for Valley Village is another example of how the tenacity and devotion of Valley Village Homeowners Association volunteers pays off. Improved landscaping and a monument sign are now completed at Laurel Canyon and the 101 Freeway entrance.

Valley Village Homeowners Association has a committee working hard to get a sound wall on the 170 freeway. This has proved to be a much longer and more arduous process than anticipated. Volunteers continue to pressure our elected officials for this much needed project.

Valley Village Park has been greatly improved. The Valley Village Homeowners Association working with the Recreation and Parks Department accomplished several successful projects. A community tree planting added 100 trees. New play equipment has been installed, walkways have been improved, the restrooms were remodeled to relocate the doors for better safety, and a new irrigation system keeps the grass green and healthy.

Whenever new commercial construction or expansion happens in Valley Village, the Homeowners Association is watchful and makes certain that they comply with our Specific Plan.
