July 4th Parade

Each Independence Day residents and visitors alike proclaim the Valley Village July 4th Parade a rousing success. Small town America sometimes seems lost in the big city but it is recreated for a day as our community comes together for this home grown celebration.

Valley Villagers gathered at Colfax Elementary School, and with the help of devoted volunteer members of Valley Village Homeowners

Association, held the best parade yet. Balloons and flags and all sorts of red, white and blue decorations were handed out. The participants included folks of all ages, dogs of all sizes and even a chicken on a leash. This year there were also twelve colonial-costumed riders on beautiful Arabian horses.

Thanks to all the volunteers and local businesses who contributed to the success of the event and to the Los Angeles Police Department who accompanied the parade, making sure we had safe crossings.

The parade culminated at Valley Village Park on Westpark Drive where the Association provided frosted cupcakes, corn dogs, cold drinks and ice cold watermelon in the best 4th of July tradition.

People stayed to visit with the neighbors they know and to get acquainted with those they haven't met. There were smiles and laughter all around.

What a party it was!

Demand For Accountability

"No taxation without representation" was one of the earliest outcries of protest by the American colonists. They should have said "no taxation without accountability." Representation is of little value unless there is accountability.

City Controller Laura Chick's audit report of the last trash fee hike drove this point home. Our "representatives" promised that hike would be used to hire one thousand police officers. Less than four hundred were actually hired. It has been suggested that the revenue was either mismanaged or the promise was disingenuous.

Now yet another trash fee increase has been approved by the City Council and supported by the Mayor. The purpose? To hire the remaining six hundred police officers who were promised with the first increase.

With the failure of the City to deliver on its promise, we are faced with more financial demands on the November ballot.

Taxes are the price we pay for a civilized society. Taxation with representation and accountability is what we should demand. Before we cast our votes, we should know the objectives and we must demand specifics and well supported cost/benefit justifications. It is our right, and our elected officials are obligated to provide them.

A Letter from the President

Dear Neighbors:

When I was kid, my mom would call out from the kitchen and say, "Peter, will you please take out the trash." I would respond, "I'm busy now in a minute mom." (I was probably watching TV – real busy!) My mom would wait a few minutes and then I would hear from the kitchen, "Peter please take out the trash." I'd respond, "in a minute mom." Mom would wait a little and then ask again ever so patiently. I would reply with "Yes, mom," hoping that if I said "yes" she would stop asking. But some time would pass and I hadn't taken out the trash yet, so again mom would ask ever so nicely, "Peter please take out the trash." Aggravated, I would jump up, go out to the kitchen, say something under my breath, and take out the trash. Mom would just turn and say, "thank you."

Mom never gave up. Mom never lost her temper. Mom remained calm and polite. Mom just continued on after her goal, to get the trash out. When dealing with the City and our elected officials we need to be just like Mom. The difference is it takes a lot more asking and persistence. In dealing with City and elected officials, even Mom might have lost her temper.

Take SB1818 for example. Citizens throughout the City and the State are saying what a terrible law this is. What do we hear from the other room (our City Council), "It's a state law, our hands are tied." Yet, cities across the state have enacted ordinances in an attempt to mitigate this destructive legislation, but not our City. We hear over and over, "our hands are tied."

So, what can we do?

Be just like Mom. Never give up! Stick to our goal, get the trash out. Laws and legislation are changed all the time. SB1818 is a new law, it was done, and it can be undone. We do not have to accept "our hands are tied."

This really goes for anything we think needs to be done by the city or the state. Keep asking until it's done. This is the reason we added our new section on our website called "Our Position." We've tried to be clear and concise on how the board and membership view an issue so you can use the information to keep asking.

We have also sent out with our membership cards an Action Alert. The Action Alert tells you what you can do to help. Please keep the action alert and call more than once.

Take a lesson from Mom. Persist. Mom knew eventually she would get what she wanted and we can do the same with the City!

I hope to see you September 17th.

Peter
